REFORM OF CURRENCY AND BANKING SYSTEM TO BE CHIEF TOPIC

Chamber of Commerce Committee to Meet for Discussion of Work of National Monetary Commission.

NEW SUBWAY BOARD

Three Members Appointed to Work Out the Problem of a Comprehensive Plan of Tunnels for This City.

Mapping out a program for the study of matters bearing on the reform of the banking and currency system is the chief topic before the banking and currency committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce which meets late today.

This subject is one of the most impertant now before the public," says the Chamber of Commerce News today. "The work of the national monetary inission is of vital concern to the benking and business interests of the

When that commission makes public Its report, continues the News, it would be highly desirable if a committee representing an organization like the chamber were qualified, as a result of study and cuasion, to pass judgment upon the ommendations of the commission, approving or suggesting modifications as seemed advisable. Such questions also as the Boston method of handling the checks of country banks, bank acceptances, fuller utilization of reserves, elasticity of note circulation, the form and functions of a central bank, etc., are of such paramount importance that it seems fitting for a public body like the chamber to give them careful study at a time when far reaching changes and reference are impending.

Thanksgiving Day Proclamations

By President William H. Taft

WASHINGTON - The annual | Thanksgiving day proclamation was issued by President Taft on Sunday. It says:

"This year of 1910 is drawing to a close. The records of population and harvests, which are the index of progress, show vigorous national growth and the health and prosperous well being of our communities throughout this land and in our possessions beyond the sea. These blessings have not descended upon us in restricted measure, but overflow and abound. They are the blessings and bounty of God.

"We continue to be at peace with the rest of the world. In all essential matters our relations with other peoples are harmonious, with an ever-growing reality of friendli-ness and depth of recognition of mutual dependence. It is especially to be noted that during the past year great progress has been achieved in the cause of arbitration and the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

"Now, therefore, I, William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the wise custom of the civil magistrates since the first settlements in this land, and with the rule established from the foundation of this government, do appoint Thursday, Nov. 24, 1910, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, enjoining the people upon that day to meet in their churches for the praise of Almighty God and to return heartfelt thanks to Him for all His goodness and loving kind-

By Governor Eben S. Draper

"In accordance with custom and by ! and with the advice and consent of the council, I appoint Thursday, the 24th day of November, as Thanksgiving day.

"For nearly 300 years, a day of Thanksgiving has been observed in Massachusetts. There has been no time in the past more deserving of such an observance than the present.

"In many parts of the world dissatisfaction with governmental and economic conditions is showing itself by great unrest, and, in some cases, by revolution. In our own country complaints of existing conditions are heard, but at the same time thousands from other lands are seeking our commonwealth as a dwelling place to better their conditions and be relieved from the oppression and suffering which have been their lot in

"The principles which were the reason for the founding of Massachusetts were never stronger than today, and every man in our commonwealth is guaranteed the right to worship God

NEW YORK-Election day tomorrow will end a campaign which for obscurity and involved situations is the most noted that veteran campaigners say they ever have encountered.

Nevertheless, by taking the situation in a few of the more important states. where conditions are becoming fairly well defined, or as well defined as they will be until after the count of the votes, a speculative summary is possible which should be of general interest.

The probabilities continue to favor a Democratic House of Representatives in & the sixty-second Congress, yet it is a fact that this result depends in part on states where it is impossible even to venture a guess and feel reasonably sure of it.

Certain vague signs are pointing toward Democratic victory. The Republican campaign managers, both here and in Chicago, expect it, although not conceding it in their formal estimates. The Democrats have not been so confident since 1892, when they won the House

The alliance, however, between Roumania and Turkey could not be without its effect on the government at St. Petersburg. The government at St. Petersburg had been for years regarded as a peculiar champion of the Slavonic people. An alliance between Roumania and Turkey, aimed at Bulgaria, and indi-rectly at Servia, was bound, sooner or later, to bring Russia in opposition to Roumania, and so in antagonism with Berlin and Vienna, and it was doing this at a moment when Russia had by no means forgotten how the Kaiser had stood "in shining armor" by the side of the King-Emperor in the days of Russia's humiliation over the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. It so happened, however, that the ally of Russia was the French republic, the country within whose borders the Young Turks had found their chief asylum during the struggle with Abdul Hamid, and in whose military and financial schools many of their ablest officers and administrators had been trained. By this time, however, Turkey was in serious financial straits, the pay of the army was not forthcoming, the ships with foodstuffs were anchored at the Golden Horn, but could not be unloaded for want of funds. A last desperate attempt was, therefore, made to arrange a modus vivendi, but these negotiations having proved abortive, the French government indicated that the negotiations were at an end, and Turkey is consequently left to make the best terms she can with another power.

The only power to whom she can turn is Germany, and already the Berlin bankers are forming a syndicate with the intention of raising the money. No doubt they could raise the necessary loan, but it would be a political loan, granted at hand facts as regards the cleanliness of an excessive rate of interest, probably 6 per cent, and cannot do more than tide Turkey over a temporary difficulty, with a view to its liquidation out of a much increase the importation of such prod- larger loan to be raised subsequently in another market. What the eventual outcome of the crisis will be it is difficult to say, but though the terms of France may have been hard, the terms of Germany will eventually necessarily be much harder still. The attitude of the French government is a simple one. Turkey, it maintains, is already the debtor of the country to an enormous extent. It has, therefore, the right, when an attempt is made to increase that debt, to take every step it can for the protection of its own lenders, and in support of the political in-terests of the country. It is difficult to see that its position is not absolutely justified, and Turkey may yet find that if France has chastised her with whips, Germany may chastise her with scor

There may be a loss of Republican congressmen in Massachusetts, and possibly in Connecticut, but it is expected here that both will elect their Republican candidates for Governor.

In Connecticut, as in New Jersey, it is a case of personality and not of platform. The Democrats have nominated for Governor Judge Simeon Baldwin, one of the ablest jurists in the country, and one of Connecticut's most respected citizens. He lacks the dash and personal charm of Dr. Woodrow, Wilson, but has market for a less price than they could an abundance of solid qualities.

Congressman E. N. Foss, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, at the big noon rally of the Democratic party in Tremont Temple today wound up his campaign against high prices and in favor of reciprocity by saying in part:

American goods of all kinds are sold for less in foreign countries than they are sold at home. If this were not true why would American manufacturers during the last 10 years have invested $300,000. 000 in building branch establishments in Canada alone? "What did they go over there for if it wasn't to put their goods in the foreign supply those markets from American factories and mills owing to the tariff laws of this country which makes their supplies and raw materials cost them so much more that they are willing to go abroad with extra capital and build mills and factories to supply the foreign de-mand at a less price than they can supply our own people at home. The rates of wages do not materially differ between Canada and the United States. "My friends, don't be fooled by glit tering generalities that have been used to deceive you in every campaign of the past 30 years. Don't you believe it when you are told that this rise in prices is not merely world wide but is practically uniform the world over and even higher abroad than it is here.

FOR LAST RALLY DAY OF STATE CAMPAIGN

The eloquence of Senator Lodge oused even greater enthusiasm in the udience than was shown in their reeption to Governor Draper.

Senator Lodge facetiously remarked in referring to the newspaper statements of his unpopularity in Massachu-setts that during his tour of the state he had been surprised at the way audiences disguised their feelings,

He said that it has been the ambition of the Republican party to take the tariff question out of politics and put it on a business basis. We knew of defects that were in the tariff previous to the revision, he said, but we did not want, to benefit any one interest at the expense of another and we believe that nothing is to be gained by those old bad methods.

We believe in Canadian reciprocity, he said, but we do not believe in taking down duties on articles unless the Canadians are willing to reciprocate.

He pointed out that under the favored nation clause the taking down of duties to Canada would mean free trade with the whole world. He said he doubted if Mr. Foss had ever before heard of the favored nation clause. Continuing he

It is of a general character far superior to the ordinary year book, and the selections, taken from wide fields of thought, have been made with the one aim of helpfulness. Great names and obscure are mingled in the list of authors, and a page where lies a choice thought enshrined in the perfect art of some master of style may be followed by one bearing the simplest thread of rhyme, which, however, never fails to bring a genuine contribution. There is a thought and a prayer on every pageone for each day in the year—and all, in their way, fine. Many of the old verses appear-old either in time or by much service, even to "Abou Ben Adhem," which never wears out. But these are cherished in many hearts, and will be thrice loved in such a setting as this. There are many others less well known. and among these it is matter of gratification that Mrs. Perin has drawn upon the beautiful poetry of Edward Rowland Sill. His retiring nature and almost over-modesty, presenting as it did his full appreciation while he wrote, seems to have wrought a silence about the work he left, and those who know what riches his small volumes contain are comparatively few.

Another obligation she puts her readers under, by the selection of several excellent bits from Paul Laurance Dunbar -brave singer, with his "Just whistle a bit." Little known, too, are the sweet verses of that woman beloved, Alice Freeman Palmer, from whom we quote a few lines:

Beside the brook, the meadow rue Stands, tall and white, The water softly slips along, A murmur to the thrush's song, To greet the night.

I bow my head, and lift my heart,

In Thy great peace, Thy Angelus, my God, I heed, By the still waters wilt Thou lead,

Till day shall cease. . The indubitable value of this little book makes it probable that there will be succeeding editions, and one is therefore the more constrained to point out

WHAT THE SHEARS SAY

The brooks are the river's children

That play in the summer sun; They bide in the leafy woodland. In the open they scud and run. And they ring with a joyous laughter, And brim to brim with fun.

They glide through the fern-hung tan-

And flash in the golden light; They dance, in their robes of splendor, Beneath the moon in the night, And they ripple and sing and murmur In a fantasy of delight.

The brooks are the river's children: They run from the rugged hills, Each one, in a tide of silver, Its silver lilting spills, under obligation to procure a service book, which after purchase must be officially stamped by the police authorities. The authorities enter in the book a description of the holder, having reference to age, personal appearance and religion says Harper's Weekly.

And the world is filled with the music Of the laughter-loving rills. -William Reed Dunroy, Chicago, Ill.

When a situation is applied for the prospective employer can see at a glance whether the applicant has been in service before, and, if so, what kind of work has been done. If the applicant secures the situation the employer writes in the book, "Entered the service of So-and-so, of such a street and town," adding the date, a description of the work required,

The employer retains the book as long as the engagement lasts, and, on handing it back, makes another entry: "Left my service on such a date," with a few lines as to character and the servant's reasons for leaving.

Thus the character-book goes round and the servant has never the uncomfortable necessity of asking her mistress for a recommendation. Forged charac-ters are practically impossible, since the

CHICAGO INSTALLING PUBLIC LIBRARIES IN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS

Innovations Under Henry E. Legler Result in Addition of 20,000 Persons to Regular Patrons.

SCHOOLS GET BOOKS

CHICAGO-In the year since the reorganization of the Chicago public library board and the appointment of Henry E. Legler of Milwaukee as librarian, there has been an addition of 20,000 persons to the regular patrons.

Every months nearly 50,000 more books are circulated from the library. The open shelf" feature has been inaugurated and the influence of the library has been widely extended through circulating branches, small parks, schools, industrial plants, factories, etc.

From the financial side the work has been equally as encouraging. In spite of the rapid extension of the library the board has placed it upon a cash basis at an annual saving of from $5000 to $10,000, this being the amount that for- Milwaukee man who has revolutionized merly was eaten up by interest on borrowed money. The library is the only department of the city that is on a cash basis.

Mr. Legler is given a great share of the credit in extending the scope of the library's work. He has been seconded by Robert J. Roulston, president of the board, and Henry C. Wilson, secretary. Mr. Legler took charge of the library Oct. 11, 1909, and since then there has been uninterrupted progress.

Eight of the 19 reading rooms have been changed into circulating branches, and the work is being continued as rapidly as it is possible to secure the and Saturday matinee. needed extra volumes. The other 11 will be changed within the year, and several of them immediately. Mr. Legler has been working on the theory that 'circulation" is the measure of the public library's value.

He began working on the "open shelf" plan as soon as he took charge, believing patrons would be more interested if they could see the books. The open shelves were installed in the main library building last winter, 15,000 new volumes being purchased for the purpose. Within a few hours the collection was "raided" so effectively that the library authorities began to bring thousands of volumes from the hidden cases. Many of them were books that were seldom called for, but they too were quickly taken out of the open shelves.

The cooperation between the library and the boards of the public parks and the school boards is another advance for the year. It will be only a short time before every park in Chicago equipped with a field house will have a circulating branch.

In the schools about 130 classroon collections numbering about 50 volumes each have been installed. They are in 13 different schools and in 10 or more classrooms in each building. The collections are changed twice in the school year. The books are in charge of the teacher.

REPUBLIC IS SAFE IN PORTUGAL NOW, SAYS PRESIDENT BRAGA

New Regime Is Stable and Reaction Is Impossible, Declares Nation's Head—Subscription Taken Among the People to Pay Off National Debt.

NEW YORK-The Herald today prints | arrest of Senhor Franco. The President Lisbon: Your correspondent was received Sunday by Dr. Braga, the pro-visional President. I asked him when he thought the republic had justified its existence and if he had reason to suppose that it would continue. Dr. Braga answered:

"When it came the revolution was in the minds of all men. It was based on the people's confidence in the army and navy. Today I can say that the machine of state is working splendidly. Commerce and industry are flourishing. Men of all shades of thought in public lifeeven the priests-have bowed before the existing government, which has conquered owing to its honesty.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston speaking at the Democratic noon rally at fremont Temple today, said on part:

"The Republican party is facing assured defeat on the morrow, not only in this state but all over the Union. The defeat will be brought about by the votes of Republicans who will retire to private life those men who are responsible for present conditions.

"The leaders in this state have not undertaken to defend the tariff bill. They seem to think that the people can be fooled, as they were fooled two years ago when they were promised a reduction in the cost of living. Instead of reducing the cost of living, the Payne-Aldrich bill has increased it. In response to the people's cry for lower taxes came

TWIN CITY NET EARNINGS LESS

September Returns Smaller Than Year Ago, but October Results Are Expected to Be Satisfactory.

NEW YORK - For several months, Twin City Rapid Transit's September net earnings were somewhat reduced by an increase in cost of conducting transportation, due to circumstances over which the company had no control. Low water in the Mississippi river made it more expensive to generate power, and cost of fuel was higher owing to strike of coal miners. These drawbacks are expected to be eliminated and October returns should show a return to the normal condition of increasing net results. Gross for September increased 7.07 per cent over 1909 and net decreased 0.9 per cent. For nine months net revenue totaled $2,932,262, against $2,743,852, a gain of 6.87 per cent.

Maintenance charges against equipment were smaller by 2.66 per cent for the nine months compared with last year. To keep up way and structure cost 17.41 per cent more.

After charges, including taxes, interest and apportioned preferred stock divi-dends, surplus for nine months was $1,-670,609, a 11.72 percent increase. This is equal to 8.35 per cent on the $20,100,-000 common stock upon which dividends of 6 per cent are paid. At current rate something over 11 per cent should be shown on the common for the entire

Recently reports have emanated from Canada to effect that Twin City will shortly increase its common dividend to 7 per cent. There is no doubt of the company's ability to pay the increased rate without weakening its position, but it is improbable that any such action will be taken in the !mmediate future. The next quarterly dividend is due to be declared next month and the regular disbursements will doubtless be author-

Movement of Vegetables and Truck From the Various Points in First Six Months of Year Is Heavy.

DEVELOPED QUICKLY

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex.-Railroad figures are now available showing the movement of vegetables and truck from points in south Texas during the first six months of the present year.

San Antonio & Aransas Pass railroad handled 1594 carloads of truck from points on its line from Jan. 1 to Aug. 5. St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico railroad handled approximately 1400 carloads of RAILWAY EARNINGS truck during the same period, making a total of about 3000 carloads of this character of traffic that originated in the territory occupied by the two lines dur-ing the first half of the year.

International & Great Northern, South ern Pacific and the shorter independent. lines in south Texas for the same period, it is conservatively estimated, aggregate not less than 4000 carloads, or a total of approximately 7000 carloads of truck that was shipped out of south Texas during a period of six months.

The bulk of those shipments was destined to markets outside of Texas, many going to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and even to points in California.

This new traffic is a great boon to the railroads of South Texas. It comes at a season of the year when the movement of other freight is comparatively light.

The territory where the truck is now being extensively grown was devoted exclusively to cattle growing up to a few years ago and the railroads handle! little else but livestock, which brought them only a minimum of profitable re-

EXPORTS OF MANUFACTURES MAY BREAK RECORD FOR YEAR

Estimated That Total Amount Shipped From United States During Twelve Months Will Exceed Eight Hundred Million Dollars.

which ends with next month for the first of last year, the growth is by no means time will exceed $800,000,000 in value. The September export figures, just completed by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, seem fully to justify the prediction that the year's exports of manufactures will cross the $800,000,000 line and surpass those of any earlier year.

For the single month of September the exports of manufactures aggregated $70,000,000, and for the nine months ending with September $613,000,000, an average of $63,000,000 per month for that portion of the year for which figures are now available.

Should this average be maintained during the remainder of the year, an expectation which seems quite justified, the total value of exports of manufactures in the 12 months ending with December will be over $800,000,000.

The figures thus far show a large gain over those of last year in both is as follows: es of manufactures. The group, manufactures ready for consumption. shows for the nine months of the present year a total exportation of $402,000,000. against $347,000,000 in the corresponding nths of 1909; and the group, "manufactures for further use in manufacturing," $211,000,000, against $187,000,000 in the same months of last year.

For a single month of September man-ufacturers ready for consumption show a total exportation of $44,000,000, against $38,000,000 in September of last year, and manufactures for further use in manufacturing, $25,000,000, against $20,000,000 in the same month of last

Manufactures are the only important class of exports which show a material gain in 1910, compared with 1909. Ex-ports of foodstuffs in a crude condition in the nine months ending with September, 1970, show a total of but $60,000,000, against $75,000,000 in the same months of last year; and foodstuffs, partly or wholly: manufactured, $180,000,000, 205,000,000 in the same months

Said a merchant who was buying for an Oklahoma string of stores "The far South-Nov. 28 west is very prosperous this year. Wheat was : good crop and cotton did well, with good rices. In Kansas as I came through I saw the finest wheat stand in years, and the people there are sharing in the general conditions of prosperity in the Southwest. If the holiday trade comes up to the expectations, there will be finished a year of high average in the production and incor of the agricultural sections." This is the sentiment of most of the merchants who come to market, and all report a fair condition as to collections. Banks are likewise hopeful. On the whole they are doing a good business and the indications are or its continu-

KANSAS CITY STOCK YARDS

Receipts of livestock at Kansas City stock yards continue to decrease. July is the only month of the year that has shown an increase compared with the corresponding month a year ago. Hog receipts show an unusual decrease of 58 per cent compared with October, 1909, which even exceeds the decrease in September of 46 per cent. In view of the exceptionally low price of corn, however, it is not expected that these decreases will continue.

Receipts of cattle showed a slight improvement and sheep increased 17 per cent. The average weight of hogs for October was 213 pounds, compared with 217 pounds last month and 194 pounds

Keeping Track of Soldiers

We hear much of the perfection of military organization abroad, but it is doubtful whether any foreign war office follows with an accuracy greater than that displayed by our own war depart-that displayed by our own war department the movements of its officers. The following is an interesting case in point:

A young army officer who has seen service in this country and in the East was once with a small scouting party in Arizonact After two weeks in the desert his squad came to the railway assay a small station. Within 10 minutes at telegram from Washington was brought to him by the station agent. It saked if the officer wished to be transferred to one of the new artillery regiments then forming.

He answered by telegraph that he would be glad to enter either of them. Then with his squad he set off again across the desert.

It was six days later when they again struck the railway, this time 80 miles from the point at which they had previously crossed it, but the officer's reply from the war department was awaiting him. It had been telegraphed to every station within 200 miles

A more striking instance of accuracy occurred after the same officer's transfer to the East. . He was traveling home on leave and, as the regulations require, he had notified the department of the day, hour and probable route of his journey. After he had been on the train for eight hours at a small station the porter entered with a telegram asking if any one of his name was present. On opening the telegram the officer found that it ordered him to detached duty.

Colors That Fade

Addressing the students at the Royal Academy school, Burlington House, Sir Alfred Church remarked that he did not suppose if Sir Joshua Reynolds were here today he would be at all satisfied with the chemical verdicts which were pronounced upon some of the pigments which he used for some years, for unfortunately there was in some of them an element of decay, and certain of them had hardly left a trace in some of his most beautiful portraits. In old illuminated manuscripts which had been long preserved in darkness it was found that dear." on exposure to a strong light the colors began to take on a dull and grayish look. In a great many works at the National gallery ultra-marine, and in some cases vermilion, had preserved their color unchanged, while all yellow lakes, crimson and cochineal lakes had become more or less embrowned by exposure to strong daylight.

Some of the Issues Tomorrow

This is a great country and its political interests are as varied as its industrial and social. There are, it is true, some states and some men and some questions which are more important than others, and which stand out more prominently than others in the great contest to be decided at the polls tomorrow; but let not any of us fall into the error of assuming that the state we live in, the men we are most concerned about or the questions that monopolize our thoughts have the same engrossing interest for the rest of Americans.

While the issue in New York is Theodore Roosevelt, and the issue in Ohio is the Taft administration, and the issue in Indiana is Albert J. Beveridge, and the issue in Massachusetts is largely that of overturning conditions in the state which have long been recognized as a safeguarding offset to conditions in the metropolis, and while the issue in Kansas is insurgency, and the issue in Iowa is radical progressivism, other states are giving considerable thought

For instance, three states, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Washington, will vote tomorrow on the question of granting suffrage to women. Oregon will vote on a constitutional amendment granting suffrage to all taxpayers regardless of sex. In addition, Oregon is going to vote on thirty-two initiative and referendum measures. One of these is on liquor prohibition, and one provides for direct primaries. A novel proposition in this state is that of allowing three fourths of a jury to decide civic cases.

In Wisconsin the people will vote on practical conservation; that is, they will decide whether the state shall make annual appropriations hereafter for acquiring, preserving and developing water power and forests. In Minnesota a vote will be taken on a proposed constitutional amendment exempting from taxation lands of private persons to be used for purposes of reforestation. No more important question than this is before the people of any state. Illinois will vote for a constitutional initiative and referendum proposition, for the enactment of a state-wide civil service law, and for the enactment of a corrupt practises act. Iowa will vote on the question of holding a constitutional convention.

In every one of the middle western, mountain and Pacific states important local issues are to be decided tomorrow. Some of these overshadow issues that are purely political. They have to do mainly with conservation, with development of natural resources, with the constructive work incident to commonwealth building. The states of the South, too, are very much occupied with their own affairs, educational, agricultural, industrial.

A conclusion to be drawn from all this is that the future of the nation does not rest with the decision of the voters in any one quarter or on any point of policy. Nearly all adults among the ninety-odd millions of inhabitants of the United States will be greatly interested, of course, in the news from those states which are regarded as political storm centers, but it may be well to remember that in all states and in all contests the interest of the individual voter in Tuesday's results ought to begin with the conscientious casting of his own ballot.

IF you were thoroughly convinced that because John Jones or Jack Smith found it more expensive to live in the city than to do the same thing in the country, would you declare the tariff responsible for such a condition of affairs and expect the Governor to make it different?

Travels of a Crown Prince

AT THE moment when Emperor William at Potsdam presented five of his sturdy sons to the Czar and the Czarina, the heir to the German throne was on his way to the far east. There, for the next few months, many interesting sights will come to the notice of Crown Prince Frederick William. Contrary to precedent, the meeting of the rulers of Russia and Germany at the present time is not considered of political consequence. It was a friendly call on the part of Nicholas, and the omission of the usual formality of having the respective ministers of foreign affairs in attendance robbed the meeting of its international significance.

In the matter of Crown Prince Frederick's travels, the itinerary is sufficiently elaborate to justify the guess that Emperor William some time ago outlined what effect the presence of his eldest son might have in the lands now making ready to receive him. As part of a royal education, travel lays a foundation far-reaching in its effect when the duty of ruling a nation becomes imperative. It is to be noted in the present instance, however, that the program of the journey does not indicate that Frederick William is to traverse republican territories. This, of course, is merely incidental. Paris is, doubtless, almost as well known to the German crown prince as is his own Berlin. But it would have added immensely to the American interest in Frederick William's foreign travels had he included the United States in his present tour. As he is to return home by the way of Siberia it evidently was not the intention to make of his travels a round-the-world journey.

Whatever instruction the father imparted to his son before the departure, there can be no doubt that Emperor William pressed home on the royal heir the importance of being wide awake. The European checkerboard at the present moment is in the hands of players that may move the pieces to most surprising positions. The far eastern situation depends not a little on what the powers have in mind. China is stretching herself after her sleep of centuries; but the modern garments that the empire will put on have to be fashioned according to the styles of Berlin, St. Petersburg, London, Vienna. Even the United States will have something to say about the newer Chiha. Crown Prince Frederick will take care that in so far as German prestige in the east may depend on him and what he does, the Chinese shall receive no wrong impression. As in Peking, so in Tokio, he will carry the message of good will to those in power. His popularity at home is a promise that when among the foreign people the crown prince will join heartily in the festivities that may be made for him. Like his august parent the young man believes fully in representative government. The breaking up of the notorious Von Eulenberg clique was due to his efforts. His straightforwardness has won the admiration of all classes. On the eve of the assembling of the Chinese Parliament, as it were, no better time could have been chosen for sending him to the east.

The perplexing Persian situation will come to his attention when the crown prince visits India. Germany is not overmuch pleased by what has happened in Persia during the past few days, and diplomacy will be kept busy explaining why England took the initiative in landing troops in the country of the Shah. On his return from India, Crown Prince Frederick should be able to inform the Emperor more intimately as to the exact state of affairs in the land that rumor has it is to be divided among the powers.

The crown prince will not visit the Philippines. Americans in the islands would have welcomed him, but perhaps at a later period the Emperor may choose to send his son on an even more extended tour that might take him across the western continent. Should such prove the case, the reception tendered his uncle, Prince Henry of Prussia, when in the United States, would be guarantee of a royal welcome for the heir to the German throne.

AN AUTOMATIC machine has been invented that will prepare for cooking 3600 fish every hour. This is somewhat faster even than the old-time reminiscent fisherman has ever caught them.

THE fair inference to be drawn from Postmaster-General Hitchcock's statement with regard to the increase of the postal rate on pure advertising matter is that he desires to draw more revenue from one direction that more may be expended, and for the benefit of the whole people, in another. He utterly repudiates any sympathy with the idea of placing a higher tax than is absolutely necessary upon reading matter. "Any increase thus applied," he says, "will place a special burden on a large number of second-class publications, such as educational and religious periodicals, which derive litte or no profit from advertising.'

Progress in Postal Affairs

The government, as he truthfully says, cannot afford to discourage the widest possible circulation of good reading matter. He therefore favors a continuance of the present postage rate of one cent a pound, and recommends that the proposed increase be applied only to magazine advertising matter. It is explained that he does not include newspapers in his recommendation "because they are chiefly of local distribution and do not employ the mails in any such manner as the widely circulating magazines."

It would be impossible for Secretary Hitchcock to hit upon any plan of adjustment making for the elimination of the deficit in his department, the creation of a surplus and the general extension and improvement of the postal service, which would not be objectionable in some quarters. The most that can be expected of him is that he shall inaugurate and cling to a program which will swing the postal service into line with every other advancing public utility. Soon there will be postal savings banks. Soon there will be an American parcels post. Next may come 1 cent postage. Then, if all shall be taxed in accordance with the benefits they obtain, the publishers of periodicals, as well as the publishers of newspapers, will be granted lower pound rates than those now prevailing.

The point is that under the present method of dealing with printed matter certain interests are getting a great deal more and others a great deal less in the way of postal benefits than they are entitled to. Hence the need of a readjustment.

PERHAPS Mr. Foss would be willing to retire from the Massachusetts governorship contest if he could be assured that reciprocity's chances for success thereby would be improved.

Estimates on the New York Vote

IF THE pre-election estimates of political campaign managers have greatly shrunken in value of late years it is due altogether to the fact that they are made rather with the view of affecting the vote, by encouraging one party or discouraging the other, than with a view to accuracy of statement. As all newspaper readers know, some of the managerial estimates with regard to results in city, state and nation, are so far from the mark as to be ridiculous. They leave the impression somehow that managing politicians in these days are not as efficient as they used to be. While political predictions have always been risky and seldom dependable, it is, nevertheless, a fact that many of the campaign managers of a few years ago came within measurable distance of forecasting the vote. They were able to speak intelligently, at least, of the indications, and they were able to give out information upon which the well-informed citizen could base

In New York at present we find the Republican managers placing the plurality for Stimson at from 20,000 to 90,000, and the Democratic managers placing the plurality for Dix at from 60,000 to 150,000. Such estimates, of course, are not really estimates at all. They cannot be based upon canvasses properly made; they cannot be made upon reliable reports of public sentiment. They are simply extravagant guesses.

This sort of political management is not educational. It has no real interest, even if it does not encourage general looseness of statement and a popular idea that it is unnecessary to be careful about anything in politics. There may have been a time when the "claim-everything" cry in politics carried some weight, influenced some voters, possibly it does so now; but right-minded citizens in all parties should protest against its continuance and aid in putting a stop to it.

A public that is honestly trying to solve its political problems wisely has a right to insist that even in the minor matters of political management the campaign shall be kept free from whatever is perfervid and insincere.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY MEYER apparently attended strictly to business while in Cuba, for on his way home he is reported as saying that Guantanamo would make an excellent naval base for the defense of the Panama canal.

AFTER all, the happiest campaigner after the campaign is all over will be the campaigner who has said nothing that he would be glad to recall.

REVISION of the tariff is properly an economic question, and should be taken out of politics. Making it a leading issue in campaigns of the past was justified to a degree because there was no other available method of working toward the end in view, namely, a perfectly fair system of schedules designed to protect the American producer from foreign competition and to afford adequate revenue to the government through the collection of duties. Tariff walls that prevent nations from trespassing upon the internal trade of other nations now have been erected by virtually every country except Great Britain, and even there the agitation for protection makes it likely that the monarchy may at some time cease to bear its unique distinction. Whatever we may believe individually in regard to protection or free trade, every one of us must admit that inferences drawn from collective action are usually better guides to correct views of the situation.

Tariff an Economic Question

In America at present there appears to be a widely diffused sentiment in favor of downward tariff revision. Rebellion against the high cost of living, it seems, has taken this form without full inquiry into the possibility of other causes, and partizan speakers and writers have strengthened the impression. It is admitted that the standard of living also is higher, but with this admission there comes no accompanying recognition of the fact that until wages keep pace with additional requirements the larger and incautious expenditures are not wholly warranted. Economies in food, clothing and recreation naturally establish limits commensurate with a man's salary, but the tendency is to ignore these limitations. Although wages are considerably higher than ten years ago, they have not advanced enough to cover the things that were not generally reckoned with in those days. But if wages are gradually coming into adjustment with changed conditions, that is about all that the people, it seems, can reasonably ask at present.

The Taft administration now has a tariff board, which is expected to take up the law, schedule by schedule, and recommend increases or lowering of rates where necessary to approach nearer to equalization of the difference in the relative cost of production at home and abroad. Apparently, there is to be no mount unwieldy deliberation in Congress that resulted in comprome measures, allowed to go through only after acrimonious control. versies. If matters were rightfully arranged, there would here be no inclusion of the tariff question in state or national platform of any party.

Admitting that the high tariff and the high cost of living go together, it would still be wrong to put into effect indefinite, experimental propositions. All nations are sharing the increased expense of living, which, it is supposed, will not be lessened soon. Equitable tariff rates, designed for protection rather than for revenue and arranged by non-partizan experts, combined with economy by the people in all directions until wages became adjusted to the degree of legitimate protection accorded American industries, might event. ually solve the high cost of living problem. But this solution car be reached only by divorcing the tariff from politics.

Apvocates of a return to methods of study IT that made our forefathers repositories of so much practical lore will note sympathetically the stand taken by Stratton D. Brooks, superintendent of the Boston public schools, for more attention to reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic. Yet Mr. Brooks is not the first American educator to uphold his opinion courageously on that very matter, for recently there has been a general leaning toward the belief that studies have drifted too far from those elemental things which build efficiency. Knowledge may be both general and exact, but superficiality displaces certain information that would develop in the youth qualities valuable in after life. Agitation for giving renewed prominence to the "three R's" already is bearing fruit. Business courses in public schools show an understanding that something was lacking before. Increased patronage of institutions where special training is available also answers the call of a practical age for commercially trained men and women.

The remark has been common that children learned little or nothing about pure mathematics after they left the grammar school, and in a sense it is true. Algebra, geometry, physics, chemistry, languages, ancient history and similar studies were looked upon for years as sufficient. A child was supposed to have absorbed enough of arithmetic and geography in the lower grades, and also to have become proficient there in spelling, reading and writing. Subjects of a more broadening character then were believed to be essential, and in case the high school's only purpose is to fit young men and women for entrance to the university such an idea might reasonably be entertained. But the high school is the finishing point in study for most boys and girls; it is still the minority who enjoy college life, with all its vast developing influences. Not every boy and girl can make permanent use of ancient languages or other researches that require valuable time and effort. But in the years that follow schooling, with the advent of responsibilities attendant upon business careers, there are countless men and women who wish earnestly for more thorough knowledge of plain, every-day arithmetic, spelling and writing.

In the last few years have come radical departures from the old methods of education in the public schools. The tendency, in fact, has been to get too far away from some of those time-honored ideas, the value of which is becoming apparent once more, it seems. Superintendent Brooks even notes the inclination to revive the spelling contests of former days. Although he foresees grave objections to introducing competitive contests of a personal nature among young children, the lasting benefits of the old "spelling bees" still are felt by people who did not always head the blushing line. All America now is taking up the movement for educational reform, and the pendulum is swinging from artificiality back toward practical lines of study. It is to be hoped that the other extreme will not be reached while forsaking much that is non-utilitarian. Thought must not be entirely prosaic, or half the beauty of existence would remain undiscovered. Proper balance of idealism and practicality in study will hasten the rearing of a splendid educational structure. And the three R's are the rock foundation.

ELECTRIFICATION has a pleasant sound to both commuters and those residing in the vicinity of the railroads.
